For independent New Zealand distilleries

Scotland is the past hundred years. New Zealand is the next.

New world single malt for the world's largest whisky market.

Whisky and bespoke spirits · New Zealand to India · September 2026

Why now.

India drinks more whisky than any country on earth, and its premium drinkers already collect Macallan, Yamazaki and their own sold out single malts. New Zealand arrives as the new world origin, in allocations small enough that owning one is the whole point.

No. 1

India is the largest whisky market on earth by volume; single malt is its fastest growing tier

10 years

Is all it took Indian single malts to go from novelty to sold out collector items

Other countries can make mānuka smoked or tōtara cask whisky; the flavours are ours alone

Handled end to end.

01

Positioning

Against Scotch and Japanese prices, never under them, into collector and gifting channels.

02

Route to market

Importers and state licences for spirits, duty proof pricing, and the bars and clubs where collectors buy.

03

The story travels

Every allocation ships with its provenance, cellar door to bar cart, in the JC story frame per distillery.

04

Collective scale

Tiny allocations from several distilleries in one consolidated shipment.

WHY

Why India's collectors are ready for New Zealand

India's collectors know what early looks like: Amrut and Paul John went from curiosity to sold out. New Zealand single malt is that moment again, cleaner, greener, more bespoke.

Scarcity sells like the single malts: limited parcels, numbered allocations, producer stories with awards.

Mānuka smoke, tōtara casks and pure alpine water are flavours no other country can make.

The premium Indian drinker travels: the distillery that hosts them at the cellar door sells to them at home.

THE DEAL

Success fees only. We earn when you sell.

15%

of FOB value, payable when an order is confirmed. Recoverable in your export pricing.

+5%

paid by the Indian receiver on landing. Disclosed for transparency.

No retainers. No listing fees. No cost to look.

Exclusive, 3 years

Your exclusive route to India, renewal in your favour. Floor prices held: no discounting without your consent.

Your visitors, our tours

We build provenance tours for India's premium traveller, sold through major Indian tour operators. Only signed partners host the groups: you get the tour parties as well as the orders, at a net rate per head.

Your story travels

Every product ships with its story and its Indian cuisine matches.

Giving back

5% of profits to an Indian charity, 5% to a New Zealand charity.
